church, then your priorities are not in the right order.

The good news is that there is still time to change. If you have been making excuses instead of doing what God wants you to do, you can stop making excuses today. Start doing what God wants you to do. Accept God's invitation to believe in Jesus as your personal Lord and Savior. Let God rearrange your priorities and make time for Bible reading and prayer in your daily schedule. Get involved helping in your church wherever you can help.

It really is more blessed to do God's will than it is to make excuses.
