WILLIAM WINN

and his descendants.

(LII) WILLIAM WINN, son of Minor Winn and Margaret O'Connor, was born about 1732 and came to Fauquier County, Virginia, with his parents; married first about 1756³ Ann Lingam of Baltimore County, Maryland; issue:

1. Martha Winn; married Matthew Smith Nov. 25, 1771.

This daughter is mentioned in the will of Minor Winn, Sr. The first wife and this daughter are also mentioned in deed book 6, p. 134, Fauquier County, in which William Winn of Craven County, South Carolina, appoints his son-in-law, Matthew Smith of Fauquier County, Va., attorney to recover slaves in possession of Thomas Lingam and others in Baltimore Co., Md., which slaves he claims in right of his daughter, Martha, the remaining heiress to Ann Lingam, his former wife. This document is signed by William Winn, dated March 27, 1775, and is witnessed by James Winn, Minor Winn and Minor Winn, Jr.

† William Winn's second wife was Rosa Hampton of Fairfax County, Va., daughter of John Hampton and Margaret Wade and aunt of Wade Hampton. Mrs. J. C. Mack of Lake Arthur, La. has joined the D.A.R. on William Winn's service to the Colonial Cause of Independence, though she has not been able to discover his actual military service record. He is called in contemporary records "Colonel William Winn." The date of his death is not known and his will has not been located. He is said to have been buried at Winnsboro beside Dorothy Wright Winn. It is my opinion that he joined his brothers, John and Richard, probably after they moved from Virginia to South Carolina. The U. S. Census of 1790 lists a William Winn in Ninety-six District, Abbeville County, South Carolina, as follows: one free white above 16 years of age, four free whites below the age of 16 years; seven free white females (including heads of families); and 6 slaves. (26) I have observed no official reference which would certainly identify his military record. (27)

Children of William Winn and Rosa Hampton:

1. John David Winn, born about 1758; removed to South Carolina with his parents; said to have served with distinction in the Revolutionary War; married Eleanor Hicks (1790-1837); removed to Kentucky and later to Howard County, Missouri, in 1819 and died 1820; issue:

The following account of this family is given by Mrs.

Harriet Winn Shannon (previously referred to):

"Look here, my brother, I forgot to say anything about my grandfather's brother, William. I never saw him though he is buried beside our grandmother in Winnsborough. He married Rosa Hampton, aunt of old Wade Hampton. His daughter, Rosa, married Mr. Broughton, afterwards Governor of Kentucky. Mary married Robert Stark of Columbia; Margaret, John Hampton, brother of Wade; Sarah, Dr. John Hughes - Sukey and Betsy are best let alone."

There is a record in the South Carolina courts of a law suit between the John Hamptons and Dr. John Hughes, his brother-in-law, over a doctor's bill of some $13.00.

and his descendants.

(IV) JAMES WINN, son of Minor Winn and Margaret O'Connor, was born in Virginia. He married in Fauquier County (17) March 3, 1767 Hannah Withers - daughter of Thomas Withers and Elizabeth Williams. He served as corporal in Capt. James Johnson's company, 6th Virginia Regular Continental Line in February 1776, sergeant May 1, 1777, and Captain in 1780. He removed after the war to the falls of the Ohio River and located in what is now Jefferson County, Kentucky. His widow was living in Winchester, ^{Chate} County, Ky. in 1810. Issue:

1. Daughter; ^{Hannah Winn} married Mr. ^{Robert} Roberts. - ^{who was first husband of Mrs Andrew Jackson}
2. Elizabeth Winn; married (1) Mr. Collins and (2)

in Jefferson County, Ky. Dec. 23, 1792 William Johnson, son of Willis Johnson and Nan Chew of Spottsylvania County, Va; issue by second marriage:

3. Two or three sons and other children some of whom settled in Mississippi and Tennessee.

*2 sons lived at Natchez, Miss. in 1815, she died from yellow fever

and his descendants.

(V) RICHARD WINN, youngest son of Minor Winn and Margaret O'Connor, moved to the Camden District of South Carolina from Fauquier County, Va. about 1765, while still a minor, accompanying his older brother, John. He was born in 1750 (official records show him to have been 25 years of age when first commissioned in 1775) probably in Fauquier County. He was commissioned First Lieut., 3rd S. C. Rangers June 17, 1775; subsequently served as Major and Colonel, S. C. Militia, and finally reaching the rank of Brig. General of Militia, succeeding General Sumter. He was wounded in the battle of Hanging Rock Aug. 6, 1780 (Historical Register of Officers of the Continental Army, 1775-83, by Heitman). He is said to have been exceptionally well educated and before entering the army was employed in surveying in the Province. He led a very active military life, taking part in expeditions in Florida and in Georgia and in fights against the British at Hanging Rock, Fishor's Ford, Blackshoar, and other points in South Carolina. For interesting details of his valuable services see History of Orangeburg County, S.C., by Salloy; Colonial and Revolutionary History of Upper South Carolina, by Landrum; Southern History Association Magazine, June 1898; Mill's History of S.C; the S.C. Historical and Genealogical Mag. Oct. 1904, p. 261-2 and Jan. 1905, p. 42. He owned large tracts of land in the Camden District, chiefly in what is now Fairfield County. Some of this was obtained by the purchase of confiscated land of Tories. He joined his brother, John, in donating land for the establishment of the town of Winnsboro and was active in the Mount Zion Society and other public services. He represented South Carolina in Congress from 1793 to 1802 and again a few years later, for he is said to have voted with Calhoun, his colleague, for the War of 1812. He is said to have been appointed U. S. Superintendent Indian Affairs (Creek Nation) in 1788. The following quotation is from Dr. J.L.M. Curry's account (Draper MSS 13VV133):

"Richard Winn was the brother of John, and the youngest of five sons. He was not quite twenty years old when he emigrated from Va. to So. Ca. In Johnson's Traditions of the Southern War, you will find a partial account of his sufferings and services,.....

"Richard had a good English education, superior to what young men, at that day, as a general rule possessed. He was fond of scientific pursuits and kept himself familiar with improvements and discoveries. He knew nothing of Latin & Greek but was fond of mathematics and was an excellent surveyor. His first employment in So. Ca. was by a company of wealthy Englishmen who engaged him to survey and locate lands for them, giving him every eighth tract for his services. Thus, before the Revolution, he became a large land-owner. He was a Justice of the Peace and held the office until he joined the Continental Army.

"Many of his neighbors took British protection, but he was too good a patriot to accept such a course. He and his brother, John, were special objects of Tory malignity and suffered much loss of property. The Tories plundered and burnt Richard's home, which, by the way, was occupied by Cornwallis as his Headquarters, carried off his stock and his negroes, which were never returned. His wife, whose maiden name was Prescilla McKinney (her brother who married Anna Winn, the sister of John and Richard, was a Lieut. in Morgan's Rifle Brigade), and three little children were driven away and might have starved but for the kindness of a neighbor who had them cared for until Richard, the husband and father, then confined in consequence of a severe wound he had received at Hanging Rock, could make provision for them. During the war he went up from Lieutenant to Colonel. Afterwards, by the South Carolina legislature, when war was over, he was elected as Brigadier General and then Major General.

"He accumulated a large property, much of which was sold to pay the debts of his neighbors for whom, in his credulity and kindness, he had become security.

"He was of calm temper, attached to his friends, accurate in business, wrote with ease and strength, but was not a public speaker. He was neat in dress, interesting in conversation, moral in character, and despised what was mean and vulgar. Profane language never escaped his lips. He was modest and respectful and kind and very popular. He served several sessions in the Legislature and afterwards represented his district in the Congress of the United States. He became a member during General Washington's administration and served until after the War of 1812 was declared. In the War session he was a colleague of Mr. Calhoun and gave the war his ardent support. During his last term of service he removed to Tennessee and served a portion of his term after the removal of his family. He regretted he could not continue in Congress to aid in providing ways & means for the successful prosecution of the war.

"I am sorry my facts are so meagre but they are reliable and were gathered with considerable labor...."

The old Richard Winn place in Winnsboro consisted of 50 acres, a part of an original 300 acre tract granted to John Winn. The original house was one and a half stories. The second house was built near the site of the old one - probably by General Winn - and had all the rooms on one side (left) of a great twelve foot hall, rooms 22 foot square, and it appears to have been the plan to duplicate these rooms of the right side of the hall. The third house, the present one, is owned and occupied by Mrs. Thomas Ketchen. It is situated on rising ground about three city blocks from the center of town on the west side of the highway running north. There is a large sloping lawn in front and to the south side, containing many fine old cedars and a few remaining large pines, many of the latter having died in recent years. Beyond the highway and railroad tracks one can see, behind a grove of trees, Mount Lion School, the site for which was donated by General Winn.

Richard was a member of the Jockey Club of South Carolina, said to be the oldest club in America, and owned many fine race horses. The following is quoted from Pearson's manuscript:

"Gen. Winn had the usual weakness of putting his hand to paper as security, and as is usual, generally had the money to pay. Between 1795 and 1810, he paid security debts to the amount of $50,000. In his long absences from home his overseers did what was good in their own eyes - that is, never to consult the good of their employer. His plantation was unproductive of profits and his circumstances were not prosperous. He sold his lands to good advantage, removed with an aching heart from his ancient seat and a country he loved to a body of land he owned on Duck River, Tenn. (Maury County). Here, after some years, in the depths of solitude and among strangers, he breathed his last at a good old age. He was upwards of six feet in height and indifferently well-formed. His countenance was noble and majestic, and beamed with the warmth of benevolence and kindness. His port was noble and his manners dignified and elegant."

General Winn moved to Tennessee in 1814 and died Dec. 19, 1818 in Maury County, possessed 2500 acres and 40 slaves. One report states that his grave lies in a thicket of briars in Williamsport, Tenn; another that he was buried in Columbia, Tenn. A recent researcher reports that the Maury County records show that he was buried in Columbia; that the Government sent an inscribed tombstone to mark his grave, but that the stone was deposited in the Court House cellar to await a convenient time for setting it up; that when the citizens felt that the time had arrived for erecting the marker with appropriate ceremonies, the stone could not be found. The county records contain his will but I have not seen a copy of it. The U. S. Census of 1790 lists him as having in his family two free whites above the age of 16 years, five below the age of 16 years, three white females including heads of families, and 30 slaves.

I read in an article published in the Winnsboro "News and Herald" the statement that "General Winn's family was not considered smart. Mrs. Winn's maiden name was Blocker, an Edgefield family. One of the daughters caused some merriment among her young lady acquaintances who asked her where she got her fine shell comb she was wearing, by replying that 'her father bought it in Congress.'" (Ederington's History). The author must have been confused in his families as I have seen no other mention of Richard Winn having married a Blocker.

All of Richard Winn's children, except Samuel and Thomas, are said to have died prior to 1858. Richard married Precilla McKinney. Their children were:

1. Minor Winn; began the study of law in the home of General Andrew Jackson where he died in his early manhood (1799).
2. Margaret Winn, born 1779 and died 1806; married David Read Evans April 9, 1797; no issue. She was buried in the rear garden of General Richard Winn's home in Winnsboro. I copied the following inscription from her tombstone:

Sacred to the memory of Margaret Evans who departed this life on the 20th day of March 1806, aged 27 years. I know that my redeemer liveth and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth and that after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God. Job XIX, 25, 26. This marble is erected by David Read Evans in mournful testimony of his affection and respect to the memory of his amiable and beloved wife, Margaret Evans.

3. Christina ^{Winn} married William Bratton. He was possibly the Dr. Bratton referred to in the following quotation from a letter written by Mary Evans Winn April 13, 1824:

"I signed a relinquishment of dower to Dr. Bratton. He brought Mr. Nett here for that purpose. I could not refuse to do it as I certainly am greatly in his debt, tho he has often said he never did, nor never would, make any charge. I saw him afterwards and asked him whether he received my relinquishment as a payment. He said Yes and repeated he never meant to charge me for any service he had done, nor for any I might require of him as a physician. I don't know how to reconcile this declaration with his conduct; that land, and indeed any land so near the town, is worth $10 per acre, and he sold to Cathcart at that. Now at the assessment that you say is the nub in this business it would amount to about $100 with about 30 dollars for schooling, which makes I think a pretty good nothing..... the Dr. will give his services but never part with money if he can help it. I would not for the world offend the old man for in sickness we would sadly miss his services."

Morgan, and moved to Spartanburg Co. 1838; made repeated efforts to obtain a pension but never succeeded; died in Greenville County, N.C. at the home of William Bomer. On account of his inebriety he descended to a low social status and was forced to the most menial work for a livelihood. In spite of this he retained "his firm, quiet, determined expression - quite Jacksonian in look and manner, easy and pleasant in manners and conversation." His grand children intermarried with Moores, Dobsons, Gregory, Cothrans, Leasters, Collins, Burrells, and Winns. Spartanburg County, S.C. contains most of his descendants.

No effort has been made to solve the connection between the various lines of Winns in Virginia with the Fauquier County family. They doubtless originated from the same Welsh stem. The Winn family which has been long prominent in Liberty County, Ga. are not descendants of the Winnsboro Winns. Their ancestors are said to have removed from New England to South Carolina and thence to Georgia.
