physician, Wm. Chew Johnson.

John, with his brothers William and Richard, emigrated to So. Carolina, and settled in Fairfield District. Winnsboro' takes its name from them. He and his brother Richard served conspicuously and gallantly in the Revolutionary War. ✓ At one time he was a prisoner of Lord Cornwallis, and sentenced to death for an attempt to ambush the general, but was released through the influence of Colonel Phillips, a loyalist, to whom special kindness had been previously shown, John's first wife was Dorothea Wright, of Alexandria, Va, and the children of the union were Anna, Minor, James, John, Richard, Wright and Mary. Dorothea died during the occupation of Winnsboro by Lord Cornwallis in 1782. In 1784 John married as his second wife Penelope Kirkland, by whom he had many children - Joseph, Peter, Daniel, Harriet, Martha, Margaret, David, Jefferson, Obed, John and others dying in childhood. John removed in 1808 to Tennessee, Rutherford County, where he died in 1816. Minor married Mary, a daughter of David and Mary Evans. David was a Welshman, who had married a daughter of a baronet, granddaughter of an earl, and came to So. Carolina in 1787. Minor and Mary had nine children - Louisa, who married John Lamar, of Georgia, and had issue: Emily, married to A.R. Moore; Mary married Dr. David Dailey, of Texas; Martha married L.M. Force and Judge Hooper; Dr. Thomas E. married Smith; Harriet married Hugh Knox; Susan married James Richardson; Julia married Hooper; John D. married Mary Shannon; Dr. David R. Richard Francis, my grandfather, moved to Georgia and married Prudence Lamar, by whom he had five children - Mary, who married Thomas Lyon, and of their issue were Richard, a judge of the Supreme Court of Georgia, John and daughters; Susan, who married William Curry, by whom were two sons - Jackson C., who died a Confederate captain during the war between the States, and Jabez Lamar Monroe.

Of John's children by second wife, Harriet married a Mr Vauger, of Mississippi. Margaret, a Mr. Tucker, of Tennessee; Joseph, a daughter of Cato West, who was a nephew of General Richard, of Mississippi. Cato was a member of the Convention which adopted the first Constitution of his State. Peter went to Texas and married; other children went to Mississippi in 1821 with their mother.

Richard, accompanied, while a minor, his brothers John and William from Virginia to So. Carolina. He moved to Tennessee in 1818, and died there. He married Priscilla McKinley by whom he had eleven children, all of whom were dead in 1858, except Samuel, who was a gallant soldier of the war of 1812 and was with General Jackson in the battle of New Orleans. Richard is said to have fought in more battles in the Revolutionary War than any Whig in his State, and rose to be colonel. His hairbreadth' scapes and wounds make a thrilling romance. Salley's "History of Orangeburg County, So. Carolina," and Landrum's "Colonial and Revolutionary History of Upper South Carolina," and "Southern History Association" Magazine, June, 1898, give interesting details of his valuable services. After the war, he was elected to the House of Representatives, and after years of service, voting with Calhoun, his colleague, for the war of 1812, he resigned and moved to Tennessee where he died in 1818. He was a member of the South Carolina Jockey Club, the oldest club in the United States, kept race horses and took prizes at the annual races in Charleston.
