

The Fairfield news and herald. (Winnsboro, S.C.) 1881-1900, May 04, 1887, Image 3

Image provided by University of South Carolina; Columbia, SC

Persistent link: <http://chroniclingamerica.loc.gov/lccn/2012218613/1887-05-04/ed-1/seq-3/>

Print this image | Download this image

Where They Stopped and How They Spent the Time.

For some time prior to the occasion the members of the Gordon Light Infantry had been anticipating their trip to Charleston, and when on Monday last they made their appearance on our streets, dressed in their handsome uniforms and with their knapsack strapped to them, a determination to have a jolly time could be seen on the face of every member. A handsome car for their use was attached to the regular train on that day, which was soon occupied and the party speeding their way to the City by the Sea. Arriving at Columbia, it was found that the special train carrying the two Columbia companies had just left, so the car of the Gordons and that of the Catawba Rifles, of Rock Hill, were attached to another special train of the South Carolina Railway. The time between the two cities was spent in chatting and the forming of new acquaintances, with an occasional song to liven up those who had a tendency to napping. Arriving in Charleston at ten o'clock the company was met by a staff officer who conducted them to the Silcox building, which was the headquarters for most of the visiting companies.

EVERYBODY should buy their shoes in town will sell the same quality of shoes. Don't forget to come and see my store.

LOOK OUT AND BE

IN A FEW DAYS my new Fountain will be spared to make my Soda Water fountain.

COMPANY G, SIXTH S. C. I.

List of Those Who Were Killed and Died of Wounds and Disease in the Late War.

Through the kindness of Mr. W. B. Gilbert, we are enabled to publish a roll of the members of Company G, who were killed and died of wounds and disease in the late war:

OFFICERS.

Captain J. M. Pinney, killed at the battle of Seven Pines, Va., May 30, 1862.

Captain J. M. Brice, killed at Fort Harrison, Va., September 30, 1864.

Lieut. J. R. Milling, killed at Fort Harrison, September 30, 1864.

Lieut. J. C. Ketchin, died October 3, 1864, of wounds received at Fort Harrison.

Sergt. J. W. Sloan, killed at Seven Pines, Va., May 30, 1862.

Sergt. C. T. Robinson, died October

presse Savior
mothe
darke Boulw
sympa
The
munit thouk
Many goods tian d
I ho bound their who h fever
also w most hors e very him
him
the Sad

The Fairfield news and herald. (Winnsboro, S.C.) 1881-1900, May 04, 1887, Image 3

Image provided by University of South Carolina; Columbia, SC

Persistent link: <http://chroniclingamerica.loc.gov/lccn/2012218613/1887-05-04/ed-1/seq-3/>

Print this image | Download this image

building, which was the headquarters for most of the visiting companies. After relieving themselves of their baggage most of the members scattered to take a stroll through the streets and view the sights of the city by gas light. In the morning the visiting companies were formed under command of Col. J. Q. Marshall, of the Palmetto Regiment, and marched to the Battery where the procession was formed. Promptly at 12 o'clock the procession had been formed with the Gordons in the front, the position of honor, by virtue of being Company A, and the line of march taken up for Marion Square where the unveiling ceremonies would take place. The Military was under command of Gen. Richbourg, of Columbia. Upon the arrival of the procession at the monument, the military was dismissed. The Hon. L. Q. C. Lamar delivered the oration of the day, which was a masterly effort. The remainder of the day was spent in looking around the city. On Wednesday most of the members visited Sullivan's Island, Fort Sumter and other places of interest in and around the city. Thursday morning the company bid farewell to their quarters and the historic city and Pines, Va., May 30, 1862.

Sergt. C. T. Robinson, died October 12, 1864, of wounds received at Fort Harrison, Va.

Sergt. James Robinson, died of disease at Germantown Va., August, 1861.

Sergt. J. W. Rabb, killed at Fraser's Farm, Va., June 28, 1862.

Sergt. W. D. McKinstry, killed at Spottsylvania C. H., Va., May 12, 1864.

Corp. S. Y. Camak, killed at Seven Pines, Va., May 30, 1862.

Corp. J. C. Raines, killed in trenches at Petersburg, Va., June 6, 1864.

Corp. D. W. Campbell, died October 3, 1864, of wounds received at Fort Harrison, Va.

Corp. Wm. Miller, died of disease at Culpepper C. H., Va., in 1862.

PRIVATES.

R. S. Aiken, died July, 1862, of wounds received at Seven Pines, Va.

Moses Arledge, died May 8, 1862 on retreat from Yorktown after battle of Williamsburg, Va.

Wm. Armstrong, died of disease at Warrenton Springs, Va., in 1861.

James W. Austin, died October 10, 1864, of wound received at Fort Harrison, Va.

T. A. Boggs, killed at Fraser's Farm, Va., June 28, 1862.

Thomas Brown, died of disease at Centreville, Va., February, 1862.

Peter Brown, killed at Fort Harrison, Va., September 30, 1864.

Wm. Brice, died June 14, 1864, of the ov

Sad Legg
when ing.
fresh Many she I know and t if they
Of col
Legg
and c Dr.
for th
has be as a r
Dr. J growi
where
The
confid
who i ville solid he ca
Dr.
and p sellvi able t Son
your c
"taffy
is des Boulw
eyes s sleep:
and g
to goc

The Fairfield news and herald. (Winnsboro, S.C.) 1881-1900, May 04, 1887, Image 3

Image provided by University of South Carolina; Columbia, SC

Persistent link: <http://chroniclingamerica.loc.gov/lccn/2012218613/1887-05-04/ed-1/seq-3/>

Print this image | Download this image

has the ire come time it
it one of ing men e of our Thurs-
nd Miss
in mar-
ok place eleven on offi-s in at-marriage-g their repair-
father,
served.
couple,
, James,
, J. M.
awford,
Jr., Mr.
nd Mrs.
Nannie Rachel home of an ele-
evening.
presents

their quarters and the historic city and left for "home, sweet home." Soon after leaving, Lieutenant Wright of the Governor's Guards, who was on the train, telegraphed his company at Columbia to prepare a reception for the Gordons on their arrival in the Capital City. The Richland Volunteers, who always know how to do the nice thing at the proper time, had already made preparations for entertaining the company as their guests, and thus were the Governor's Guards cut out of what they expected to do. Upon the arrival Capt. Newham and a number of the Volunteers were at the train to welcome the Gordons for their short stay in the city. Headed by a drum corps the company marched up to main street from the Union depot, and up main street to the armory of the Volunteers. There a bountiful repast was in waiting prepared by caterer Heitsch, with plenty of nourishment of a liquid nature to wash it down and good cigars to cool off on. Col. Marshall in a neat speech welcomed the company, and in fitting terms Capt. Jordan responded, after which full justice was done to the "spread," but without any manifest decrease of the supply. Gen. Richbourg, Col. Mar-

son, Va., September 30, 1862.

Wm. Brice, died June 14, 1864, of wound in trenches at Petersburg, Va.

J. S. Boney, died October 25, 1864, of wound received at Fort Harrison, Va.

James Canak, died of disease at S. C. Hospital, Petersburg, Va., in 1862.

Zacharia Cotton, died of disease at Camp Pettus, Va., February, 1861.

A. C. Douglass, killed at the battle of Sharpsburg Md., September 17, 1862.

Thomas Durant, died at Centreville, Va., December 25, 1861.

J. M. Elliott, died December 27, 1861, of wound received at Drainsville, Va.

J. B. Elliott, died of disease at Huguenot Springs, May, 1862.

W. A. Ellison, killed at battle of Seven Pines, Va., May 30, 1862.

A. C. Fraser, killed at battle of Seven Pines, Va., May 30, 1862.

James Fife, killed at second battle of Manassas, Va., August 30, 1862.

J. A. Finch, killed at second battle of Manassas, Va., August 30, 1862.

R. J. Gladney, died of disease at home in 1862.

D. W. Hollis, killed at second battle of Manassas, Va., August 30, 1862.

Geo. Jamison, killed at Fort Harrison, Va., September 30, 1862.

John R. Kennedy, killed at Fort Harrison, Va., September 30, 1862.

Wm. Mickler, died July, 1861, of disease at Camp Pettus, Va.

J. R. Matthews, killed at Fraser's

and to hea
this as to are pai
C goo riag
cou
Che
atto

T
Cut
Rha
Ha Ert
or to refi
For

W Cot

Hay
Cor
Me
Flo
Cof
Sug

The Fairfield news and herald. (Winnsboro, S.C.) 1881-1900, May 04, 1887, Image 3

Image provided by University of South Carolina; Columbia, SC

Persistent link: <http://chroniclingamerica.loc.gov/lccn/2012218613/1887-05-04/ed-1/seq-3/>

Print this image | Download this image

without any manifest decrease of the supply. Gen. Richbourg, Col. Marshall, Gen. Metts, Capts. Newnham and Jones, and a number of other prominent gentlemen, together with a full turnout of the Volunteers, were nutiring in their efforts to make the short stay of the Gordons a pleasant one.

With a sincere regret to leave such kind hospitality, the Gordons, accompanied by Captain Newnham and others, took up the march for the C. C. & A. depot, which was reached just in time for the north-bound train.

We cannot leave the account of the time spent in the capital without saying that the efforts of the military were most heartily appreciated, and that the Gordons hope to have a time in which to show more fully their appreciation. Speech-making and songs were the order of the day between Columbia and Winnsboro, in which all joined with a hearty good will. Arriving at home the company was marched to their armory and dismissed. Every one seemed to have enjoyed himself, and will remember very pleasantly the trip to the "City by the Sea."

Wm. Blacker, died July, 1861, of disease at Camp Pettus, Va.

J. R. Matthews, killed at Fraser's Farm, Va., June 28, 1862.

Lewis Miller, killed in trenches at Petersburg Va., June, 1864.

J. C. Miller, killed in action at Petersburg, Va., April 2, 1865.

Wyatt Melton, died June, 1862, of wound received at Seven Pines, Va.

Henry McGraw, died in East Tennessee in 1863.

J. T. McCreight, killed at Fort Harrison, Va., September 3, 1864.

J. W. McDowell, died of disease in 1863.

Calvin Nelson, died of disease at Germantown, Va., August, 1861.

Porter Powell killed at Seven Pines, Va., May 30, 1862.

Jno. Richardson, died of disease at Richmond, Va., June, 1862.

J. T. Robinson, killed in trenches at Petersburg, Va., June 6, 1864.

Wm. Stephenson, died of disease at Germantown, Va., September, 1861.

Jno. W. Shaw, died of disease at Richmond, Va., in 1862.

David Timms, killed at Fraser's Farm, Va., June 28, 1862.

Robt. A. Tinkler, died June 25, 1864, of wound received at Bermuda Hundreds, Va.

J. J. Weir, killed at Seven Pines, Va., May 30, 1862.

R. G. Weir, died of disease at White Sulphur Springs, Va., in 1863.

W. S. Weir, died of disease at Petersburg, Va., in 1862.