

Mrs. Coleman, was the widow of J.B. Coleman, and they had lived in Ridgeway nearly all their lives. She was a consistent member of the Baptist Church and was highly esteemed by all who knew her. She leaves children and grandchildren who will ever cherish her memory. At one time the Coleman estate owned about one half the property of the town. 1890

DEATH OF MR. J.C. BRICE. 1891

Mr. J. Clarence Brice, son of the late John A. Brice of Woodward, died on Wednesday and was buried on Thursday at New Hope Church. He leaves a wife and several children, who have our sincere sympathy.

DEATH OF MRS. REGINA GADSDEN 1891

The friends of Mrs. Regina Gadsden will regret to learn of her death, which occurred at her residence near Winnsboro on the 23rd of February, after a long illness. Mrs. Gadsden was the widow of the late Christopher G. Gadsden, of Charleston, and a daughter of the late Osmund Woodward, deceased, and was a sister of Mrs. R.A. Buchanan, of this place. She was about fifty-five years old. Her remains were interred on Friday last in the Woodward family burying ground near Rockton.

Mrs. Boykin Lyles Laid at Rest.

On Monday Maj. T.W. Woodward received a telegram from Orangeburg announcing the death of Mrs. Georgiana C. Lyles at that place. Mrs. Lyles was the relic of the late Capt. Boykin Lyles, of this county, who was killed during the war, a sister of Col. O.M. Dantzler, of Orangeburg, who fell on the field at Cold Harbor. Mrs. Lyles, spent a large portion of her life in Fairfield where she leaves many relatives and warm friends. Her remains were accompanied to Winnsboro by her two nephews, Hon. Chas. M. Dantzler and O.M. Dantzler, Esq., and laid at rest Monday evening beside the grave of her only child, the late Mrs. J.W. McCants, in the Methodist graveyard. Rev. R. Herbert Jones read the beautiful ceremony used by the Methodist denomination of which the deceased had long been a devout and consistent member... Peace to her ashes. 1891

DEATH OF CAPT. MACFIE. 1890

Capt. James P. Macfie died at his home on Thursday evening of consumption, a disease from which he has been suffering for several years. He was buried at the brick Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church Friday afternoon. A few friends from Winnsboro attended the funeral, and many more expressed regret that they did not hear of it in time to attend.

Capt. Macfie was a native of Columbia, and graduated at the South Carolina College. Shortly after leaving college he purchased a farm in this County, which continued to be his home until death.

...Capt. Macfie married Miss Agnes Rice, of Union, whose death he has mourned for several years... The deceased leaves three sons and two daughters. Peace to his ashes.

Death of Mr. T.D. Oxner

We regret to announce the death of Mr. T.D. Oxner., which occurred at a late hour on Thursday afternoon, after a painful illness of three weeks. Mr. Oxner had been in rather feeble health for some time past, and this fact, combined with his old age, rendered him the less able to with stand the attacks of his malady. He was at the time of his death in the seventieth year of his life. Mr. Oxner came to Winnsboro about thirty years ago, entering into the mercantile business with Mr. J.M. Leventrite, now of New York. After the war the deceased was in business for a short time on his own account, and in 1868 was appointed postmaster of Winnsboro. The duties of this position he discharged throughout with conspicuous fidelity and thoroughness. In fact, in his entire life he sustained the highest character for integrity and conscientious devotion to duty. In his death he leaves a name which his descendents may well be proud. 1890

Death. Mrs. William Sloan, an aged lady of over eighty years, who has been suffering with a cancer, was relieved of her pain, when on Tuesday morning ... she quietly passed away. The deceased spent most of her life in and around Winnsboro. She lost three sons in the war ... Her remains were buried in the Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church yard Wednesday afternoon. Pallbearers: T.K. Elliott, T.H. Ketchin, T.W. Lauderdale, J.P. Caldwell, H.C. Elliott, J.H. Cummings. 1890

Death. Mrs. I.T. Smith died at her home near Horeb on last Thursday. She was about 65 years old, and had been confined to her bed for three months with paralysis. The funeral took place at the Horeb Church on Friday. 1890

DEATH OF MRS. R. C. STEWART. 1890

Mrs. R. C. Stewart, of Longtown, died on Monday, the 17th inst., and was buried in the cementary at the Longtown Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Stewart leaves a husband and three children.

Death of Mr. James Phillips. 1891

Our entire community was startled at hearing on Saturday morning of the death of Mr. James Phillips. Mr. Phillips had been sick about one week, but few people knew anything of it. Mr. Phillips was born in Winnsboro about sixty-seven years ago. He was a quiet and unassuming citizen, attending to his own business...He leaves surviving him sister, Miss Lizzie, and brother, Mr. R.W. Phillips. His remains were interred in the A.R.P. burying ground on Sunday morning and were followed to their last resting place, by the Winnsboro Lodge, A.F.M. and a large concourse of friends...After religious services in the church, conducted by Rev. J.T. Chalmers...

Mr. Rosborough was also greatly beloved by all who knew him. He was a good citizen and neighbor and a kind friend. He was for many years a ruling elder in the Presbyterian Church. He leaves a widow, children and grandchildren and a host of friends to mourn his death.

Hon. John A. Rosborough, son of the above mentioned, has been on a visit to his old home. He has represented his county in the Florida Senate for four years...He was re-elected last fall for another term. He is looking well and wish him many more years of usefulness. 1890

Stranger Killed in Columbia Identified

The mangled remains that were buried a day or two ago in potter's field by the railroad authorities are no longer unidentified. Yesterday morning they were unquestionably recognized as those of the late Mr. Wallace. It was a gruesome investigation, but it satisfied a widow that there need be no further search for her husband.

Several days ago Mr. J. W. Wallace left his home, Wallaceville, in Fairfield county, and came to Columbia. He put his horse and buggy in Platt, Hook and Shull's yard and there it remained until his people claimed it.

Mrs. Wallace read in the newspapers that an unknown white man had been killed by the South Carolina and Georgia railroad. She feared that it might have been her husband, as he failed to return home as expected. She communicated with her brother-in-law, Mr. McMeekin, who lives in Columbia, and he started the inquiry. Mr. McMeekin was pretty well satisfied after making inquiries that the unknown dead man was Mr. Wallace, but to make sure he secured permission from Coroner Green to exhume the body. Coroner Green, Mr. McMeekin and several friends yesterday morning went to the place of burial and exhumed the body and found that it was that of Mr. Wallace beyond any question. The body was reinterred, but in a few days will be taken up and buried in the family burial grounds.

Mr. Wallace was the youngest son of the late Dr. John Wallace who lived in Columbia for some time. It is somewhat curious that although Mr. Wallace lived in Columbia and worked here for a while that no one should have recognized his dead body. No doubt the impression that the remains were those of a tramp had much to do with no special interest being taken in the matter.

Mr. Wallace was a man of family and leaves a wife and five children. —The State, Nov. 22. 1897
