Traditional wedding marches by Lohengrin and Mendelssohn were used for the processional and recessional.

The chapel was effectively decorated with palms and brass candelabras.

Lever-Taylor

Crooked Run Baptist Church near Winnsboro was the scene of a lovely wedding at three o'clock on Sunday afternoon, June nineteenth, when Miss Kitty Jay Lever, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Lever of Blythewood, became the bride of Thomas L. Taylor of Winnsboro.

The vows were spoken amid a setting of beautiful palms, baskets of white gladioli, Shasta daisies, feverfew and ferns, with candelabra holding white tapers completing the decorations.

Rev. Paul Becker officiated, using the double ring ceremony.

Miss Adelaide Brooks, church organist, and Chris Leitner, vocalist, furnished the nuptial music.

Usher groomsmen were Vasco A. Taylor and Richard Beckham, and Archie L. Taylor was the bridegroom's best man.

Miss Julia Ann Eargle of Blythewood was the maid of honor. She wore a dress of pink linen with pink accessories, and carried a Colonial bouquet of pink carnations and gypsophelia.

The bride entered with her father, by whom she was given

Mrs. William Thomas Hendrix Jr.

tet sang "Praise Ye the Lord of Hosts" by Saint-Saens and "Sanctus" by Schubert. A beautiful solo rendition of Handel's "Wedding Hymn", sung by Michael Dove, was used as a prayer.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. Her bridal gown of white silk organza was fashioned with a high neckline and empire waistline bodice enhanced with silk Venice lace. Seed pearls outlined the lace cameo on the sheer yoke. The dress also featured long, full Bishop sleeves and an attached chapel train ending in a deep flounce. The veil of bridal illusion with lace appliques was attached to a lace-covered Camelot cap. The bride wore a lovely heir-loom necklace of sapphires and pearls which was the wedding gift of her

Miss Meg Gunnells, niece of the bride, was the flower girl. She wore a full-length dress of white sheer nylon with flocked daisies over taffeta which was fashioned by the bride and styled identically to those of the other attendants. She carried a white basket of rose petals accented with a white satin bow and streamers.

Dr. William T. Hendrix served as his son's best man. Ushers were H. Donald Sellers and Dennis P. Drozdak of Greenville, brothers-in-law of the groom; Hubert M. Bedenbaugh, Jr. of Newberry; Samuel M. Frazer, III, and William C. Floyd, Jr. of Chester.

The bride's mother wore a coral formal length gown with a rhinestone and crystal motif at the empire waistline and

Lewis-Limehouse

Sunday afternoon, June 8th, at 5:00 o'clock, Agnes Isabel Lewis, daughter of Mr. Y. G. Lewis and the late Lynn Millen Lewis, and Theodore Julian Limehouse, son of Mrs. Theresa Limehouse and the late J. H. Limehouse, of Summerville, were married in the presence of a few close friends and relatives at the home of the bride's parents near Blackstock, S. C.

Pre-nuptial music was furnished by Miss Elizabeth Hardin, of Chester, pianist and accompanist; Mrs. J. Wat Weir, of Blackstock, violinist, Misses Berta McKeown, of Blackstock, Nancy Moore, of White Oak, and Elizabeth Stevenson, of Winnsboro, vocalists.

The usher-groomsmen, Young G. Lewis, Jr., and Lynn M. Lewis, brothers of the bride, lighted the candles while Mrs. Weir rendered "Souvenir."

To the strains of the Lohengrin Wedding March, Catharine Lewis, sister of the bride, and Betty Limehouse, sister of the groom, entered singly and took their places. They wore blue and pink net with ribbon trim and carried bouquets of pink gladioli. They were followed by the maid of honor, Eva Lewis, also a sister of the bride, gowned in pink net, made similar to those of the bridesmaids. Her arm bouquet was of white gladioli and fern.

The bride lovely in her wedding dress of white lace, with net insets in the skirt, sweetheart neckline, puffed sleeves and long lace mitts, and her waist-length veil of net, made coronet style and beaded with seed pearls, and carrying a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley, entered on the arm of her father and was met at the altar by the groom and his brother, Benjamin Limehouse.

There in the soft glow of the candles, their light and the group before the altar caught and reflected by the mantel mirror, Rev. W. A. Kennedy, pastor of the bride, with his usual quiet dignity and beauty of language performed the ring ceremony, while Miss Hardin played "To a Wild Rose."

After a short reception, the bride, attired in a dark blue chiffon with white accessories, and the groom left for their trip to the mountains of North Carolina amid a shower of rice and good wishes.
