

On December 18th, Fonti Flora, the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Pearson was the setting for a wedding, lovely in its quiet charm and dignity, when their daughter, Katherine, became the bride of George William Tomlin, Jr., of Columbia and Philadelphia, Pa.

Promptly at the noon hour, the bride descended the long stairway to the strains of the Bridal Chorus, from Lohengrin, played by her brother, George Butler Pearson, and was met by the gride-groom at the foot of the stairs. She was unattended.

Shortly before the ceremony, W. B. Pearson, Jr., of Charlotte, older brother of the bride, lighted the candles.

The vows of holy matrimony were spoken in the old parlor before an improvised altar with background of pine, fern and Southern smilax, at either end of which Cathedral candles burned.

The very Rev. Martin C. Murphy, pastor of St. Peter's Catholic church, Columbia, officiated in the presence of the two families and close friends of the couple.

The bride wore a becoming travel suit of navy wool with rust accessories. Her flowers were a shoulder corsage of valley lilies, gardenias and fern.

Immediately following the ceremony the guests were invited into a candle lighted dining room, where a plate luncheon was served buffet style. The bride's table was centered with a tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom.

The young couple left after the reception for a wedding trip through Southern Florida.

Mrs. Tomlin is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Pearson of Fairfield. She is a graduate of Winthrop college and a member of Chi Theta Kappa and Beta Alpha clubs.
